DeveloperTutorials.com Author Guidelines

Developer Tutorials aims to provide its users with a regular supply of cutting-edge programming and design guides keeping them up-to-date on new and emerging technologies and techniques. To help fuel this effort we continually seek knowledgeable writers to produce unique, high quality tutorials and list based articles that our users will find both interesting and useful.

Submission Requirements

All tutorials and list based articles submitted to DeveloperTutorials.com:

- must be a minimum of 1000 words in length with the exception of Photoshop and Illustrator tutorials.

- must be original content and not be published elsewhere on the web

- should be submitted as either an HTML or Word Doc.

- should include illustrations (screenshots etc) if needed to more effectively portray your message.

- must be submitted to editor@developertutorials.com with an author biography of no more than 50 words, the url for your site and an author headshot if available.

- must not contain affiliate links

- must not include links to your own site or the sites of your clients

- images for the tutorial must be submitted as separate gif, jpg or png files

- images should be no larger than 450pixels in width

- downloadable files must be submitted in a separate .zip archive and should include all the data needed to make the example fully functional

- We typically review tutorials submitted within 24 hours but review times may vary

Acceptance, Publication and Rights

We require complete exclusivity over the tutorial for 120 days from the date in which we publish it. After this 120 day period has passed you may publish the tutorial on your own site if you desire. Any other reproductions of the tutorial, in any form, in whole or part, must be approved by DeveloperTutorials.com in writing before the reproduction is published. We will not be able to publish your tutorial if we do not hold unlimited, exclusive rights.

If you have any questions about writing for developertutorials.com please contact us at editor@developertutorials.com